Fanatical Fans of Ancient Chariot Racing

All kinds of underhanded stories are told of charioteers poisoning other charioteers or trying to poison their horses so they would not perform well the next day. The fanatical support of the mob for their individual factions is commented on again and again in the sources.

In the end, the emperor had to send in the troops, with the result that 7,000 people were killed in the ensuing chaos. So the support of the charioteers for their faction was extremely noticeable.
